Healthy Career Move

THE BOOMING HEALTH CARE INDUSTRY NEEDS MORE THAN DOCTORS AND NURSES.

Health care has been adding an average of 21,000 jobs every month for the past year, continuing a trend that saw 2.6 million jobs added to this industry over the last 10 years.

There is no end in sight either. Experts predicted in 2012 that health care would add 5.6 million jobs over the next eight years.

As 78 million baby boomers enter their golden years, the need for skilled workers will only continue to grow, and not just in hospitals. There will be opportunities at nursing centers, insurance companies, outpatient centers and urgent care centers. Two to 3 million baby boomers will age into Medicare every year for the next 30 years. That's going to continue to increase the demand for health care professionals in a big way.

So even if your MOC had nothing to do with the medical field, it's worth considering a career in this, uh, healthiest of industries.
