

TRANSPORTATION

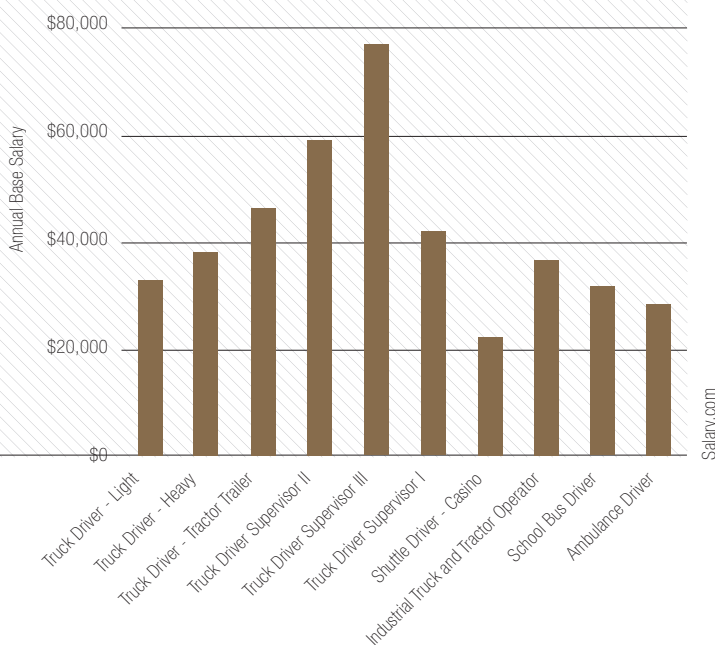

Safety First!

As wide open as the spaces of America itself, the transportation industry spans a fascinating array of companies and careers. It's all about moving - moving people, moving things. But regardless of the mode of transportation, these employers all have one common goal: safety.

That's the reason transportation employers prefer to hire first from the military. Regardless of your branch or the job you did, working safely was drilled into your head from the first day of boot camp. Military Friendly® Employers love that. Railroads, airlines, trucking companies and shipping lines - they all need to operate safely.

Another similarity: These companies operate around the clock, something you're used to as a veteran. They pay well and offer great benefits. So pick your preferred mode of transportation and start your career search here.
